

... for your patience.

We are going to miss our March 31st, 2011 deadline for our new site launching.

In coordination with several new working partners - including Conestoga College, please let me assure you that we are hard at work with plans to introduce the new refreshed Food Diva - with a site that is more functional, attractive, and feature heavy.

There have been unexpected obstacles that slowed down our overall progress. So rather than launch our new site in pieces, we have decided to re-set our official relaunch date, all systems go to August 15, 2011. I encourage you to keep visiting www.fooddiva.com as news of our progress will be regularly uploaded to the present site during this time period.

I promise you we will be worth the wait and again I thank you for your patience. For those that have pre-purchased memberships, at the current discounted price, please be assured that your 1 year term will begin only when the new site is launched, now August 15, 2011.
